I have good news and bad news, good readers. The good news is that if you are on a sublime level with a purple eye, you can, in fact, exchange your reputation for a premium ring from Karajan to a different type of ring (if you're DPS, you can get a healing ring, and vice versa) - all you have to do is destroy your ring, and then you'll be able to re-examine the quest to get another ring, according to Hortus forums. However, I thought the other issue in the thread, one about whether it works for people who aren't elevated, was great. And since my Shaman is not yet sublime, I decided to get practical experience and find out for you, dear readers, whether the purple eye will exchange your ring at a level below the sublime. So, as you can see on the shot above, I destroyed my revered ring (I'm not kidding - I really did) and asked for a giver's quest for another. Unfortunately, the bad news is that it doesn't work. Actually, I didn't get another ring. And apparently I'll have to work up to the sublime to get my ring back. What I do for you, my readers. What I'm doing. The secret sect of Kirin Thor is founded to spy on Mediv and his activities. Purple Eye is a secret sect founded by Kirin Thor of Dalaran to spy on the Keeper of Tirisfal, Medivh, in his Karajan tower. Although Medivh is dead, the Purple Eye remains in Karajan, defending itself against the evil that seems to have taken hold in the absence of its master. It is not known whether Mediva's pupil, Hadgar, was a member of the Purple Eye, or whether he knew about their activities at the time (although he seems to know about them now). The reputation of Violet Eye is due to the murder of mobs inside Karajan and the completion of quests related to Karajan. The reputation of the Karajan mafia can be obtained from neutral position to elevation. Each trash crowd rewards about 15 reputation, with bosses rewarding more. Archmage Alturus starts a rather long chain of quests, starting with Arcane Disturbances and restless activity. This quest line rewards the Players with the Master Key and ends with Nightbane. The complete completion of this quest line rewards about 10,270 reputations. Archmage Leryda will offer players the ring as a reward for the reputation of the level of benefits in the form of quests. The first such quest is available on a neutral standing and can be completed at a friendly match. You will get a new and upgraded version of the ring that you choose every time you break into a new level of reputation. The rings are sorted into the following four categories: Koren, a blacksmith located in Karajan just after Attumen Hunter, offers players with a high enough reputation for buying an epic blacksmith plan. Players honored or above will also be able to repair armor and weapons from that supplier. The apprentice Darius, who stands near the main gate of Karajan, will sell an epic recipe for jewelry and charm of players who have the honor or above stood with Purple eye. The article is ported from WoWWiki- MoreLicens under GFDL You don't have sufficient privileges.
